

MAN CONFESSES "THRILL MURDER"

COURT DEFENDS FREEDOM OF PRESS

MINNESOTA GAG LAW UNCONSTITUTIONAL MAJORITY DECREE

Hughes' Decision Is De- fense Of Rights Of Newspapers

WASHINGTON, June 2.—American newspapers and magazines are more secure than ever in the "freedom of the press," and the supreme court is being classed by observers as definitely "liberal," as members of the court today entered upon a four months recess.

The decision which reaffirmed the constitutional guarantee of freedom of the press was rendered by Chief Justice Hughes in a five to four decision, holding unconstitutional the Minnesota newspaper "gag" law.

The decision was notable not only because of the subject but because it accentuated the division in the court in interpreting constitutional questions.

Chief Justice Hughes and Associate Justices Roberts and Brandeis, who were for years known as the "three dissenters" because they frequently disagreed with the majority.

And Justice Van Devanter, Sutherland, Butler and McReynolds, for years usually with the majority with the late Chief Justice Taft, were in the minority again.

The Minnesota law, described by Chief Justice Hughes as a direct attack on the freedom of the press, provides for court injunction against publication of a "malicious, scandalous and defamatory newspaper, magazine or other periodical."

Without defending J. M. Near, publisher of "The Saturday Press" of Minneapolis, Chief Justice Hughes discussed at length the constitutional provisions affecting the law.

He pointed out that a newspaper publisher, engaged in a crusade against crooked politicians, would have to prove not only the truth of articles but also good motive. Further, he said, a judge could permit

JAIL ESCAPE PLOT IS FRUSTRATED

CLEVELAND, June 2.—Thwarted in their alleged attempt to escape from county jail by the discovery of deputy sheriffs of gawed window bars, two federal prisoners were questioned by county authorities today while preparations for their removal to Atlanta penitentiary were completed.

Discovery of the purported jail break attempt which was believed to have been prepared by at least two prisoners for their own escape and possibly for use by other inmates of the jail came late yesterday when deputy sheriffs found the bars in a sixth floor window of the jail sawed through.

Prisoners being questioned by authorities as responsible for the attempt were Andrew Curti, 28, under five-year sentence for counterfeiting, and Louis Postoroff, 29, Curti's cellmate, under six-year sentence for a similar conviction.

BOYS ARRESTED AS WOMAN IS KILLED

EVANSTON, Ill., June 2.—Four boys shooting at targets against an elevated railway embankment were under arrest today as police tried to determine who shot and killed Mrs. Gladys Boyd, 27, a nurse who was walking along the tracks with two small children. The children were uninjured.

GRANDDAUGHTER OF HARDING MARRIED

MARION, O., June 2.—A 22-year-old grand daughter of the late Mrs. Warren G. Harding was honey-mooning today following her marriage to Charles Weil, 26, Marion furniture store manager. Before her marriage the bride was Miss Jean Dwyer, 22.

Mrs. Weil, who was wedded to her husband after a courtship which began while both were engaged in amateur theatricals here, was the daughter of Mrs. Harding's son by a former marriage.

MAYORS VISIT PLANTS

NANCY FRANCE, June 2.—Continuing their peregrinations through France, the party of American mayors today planned an inspection tour of the industrial plants of Lorraine.

NEW BRITISH LINER BREAKS TIME RECORD

QUEBEC, June 2.—Queen of all she surveyed, the S. S. Empress of Britain today rested at her pier after a triumphant maiden voyage across the Atlantic from Southampton in five days, thirteen hours and twenty-five minutes.

The 42,500 ton liner docked at Quebec last night at 10 p. m. E. S. T. Airplanes and river craft joined in a screeching salute as she moved through the harbor to her berth.

The new empress of the sea broke all existing St. Lawrence records from both Southampton and Cherbourg, and Captain Latta, her commander, was confident that she will break her own newly established marks later.

Douglas Fairbanks and Mary Pickford, American screen stars, who were aboard for the first trip, debarked with twenty-one trunks and nine other pieces of luggage and proceeded to Chicago by the Canadian Pacific Railway. They will fly from Chicago to Los Angeles.

NEW CANADIAN TARIFF WILL HELP JOBLESS

Upward Revision To Af- fect Many U. S. Products

OTTAWA, June 2.—Unemployment in Canada was looked to decrease today, as a result of extensive changes in Canada's tariff, most of them upward revisions. The changes were announced by Prime Minister R. B. Bennett in his annual budget speech to the house.

Many of the changes will affect products imported from the United States. Automobiles, coal, coke, utility products, live hogs, fresh meats, bacons, canned fruits and vegetables, hams, raisins and oranges were among the revisions listed. The leather schedule was also advanced and magazines were given an added specific duty of fifteen cents a pound.

Bennett said the changes were made in an effort to relieve unemployment. A provision to provide against "dumping" of foreign products was also announced, as well as a special excise tax of one per cent on imported goods, effective at once, an increase in income tax of eight to ten per cent, an increase in sales tax from one to four per cent and increases in postage rates on letters from two to three cents.

The premier said poor business in Canada caused the deficit of $75,244,973 in the budget and there was a drop of $7,000,000 in collections from alcoholic beverages produced in the dominion, following the stoppage of liquor exports to the United States.

Duties of forty cents and $1 per ton were imposed on anthracite coal and coke under the general tariff and the rate on bituminous coal screenings was raised to seventy-five cents.

MURDERS BRIDE AND COMMITTS SUICIDE

COSHOCOTON, O., June 2.—Domestic troubles with his bride of six months, a German woman who came to America at Christmas time to marry him, were blamed here today for the fatal shooting of his wife by John Hoehnes, 56, and his own suicide.

Hoehnes, foreman of a china manufacturing company, killed his wife, Phyllis, 45, with a shotgun, and then ended his own life with a shot from a revolver, according to authorities.

Returning from work, Maxie Hoehnes, 28, son of the man by another marriage, found the bodies.

BRIGANDS LOSE TO TURKISH TROOPS

JERUSALEM, June 2.—The notorious brigand chief Sheikh Ali Ismail and fifty-five of his outlaw followers were killed today by Turkish troops aided by a detachment of Syrian airplanes in a raid on the Syro-Turkish border today.

Scores of Ali Ismail's followers were wounded. Ten were taken prisoners.

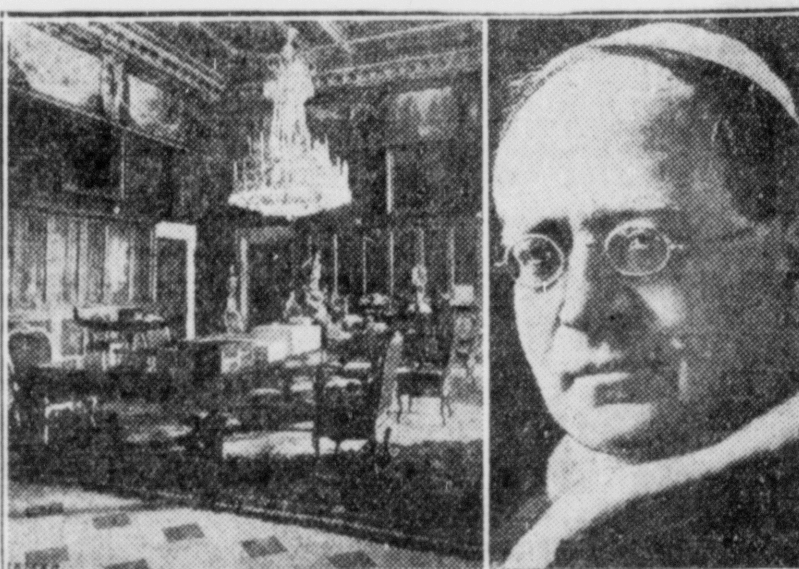

WILL GET DEGREES

COLUMBUS, O., June 2.—Gen. Edward Orton, Jr., son of Ohio State University's first president, and fifteen other engineers who have established unusual professional reputations for themselves before graduation, will receive honorary engineering degrees at Ohio State on June 8, according to plans being carried out today by university officials.

EX-KING WINS

DUBLIN, June 2.—An investment of two dollars in the days when he was still monarch of Spain brought former King Alfonso a prize of $500 in the Irish Hospital Sweepstakes on the English Derby today. The exiled king drew a consolation prize, his ticket bearing the address of Villa Fernanda Algorta, Vizcaya, Spain.

AWAITS BOTH VERDICT OF VOTERS AND JUDGE

LOS ANGELES, June 2.—While his attorneys argued for a dismissal of charges placed against him in the double murder of Charles Crawford, politician and Herbert Spencer, editor, David H. Clark today was awaiting decision by the voters of Los Angeles on his campaign for a place on the municipal bench. Only conviction could keep his name off the ballot.

The state abruptly ended its case yesterday and attorneys said they did not plan to call any defense witnesses.

OHIO SOCIOLOGICAL SOCIETY PROTESTS FIRING OF MILLER

COLUMBUS, O., June 2.—Describing the explanations given for the dismissal of Dr. Herbert A. Miller, outspoken Ohio State University sociology professor, as "inadequate, indefensible and reactionary," the Ohio Sociological Society today protested to Gov. Geo. White, President George W. Rightmire, and the board of trustees.

By their action in dismissing Dr. Miller the trustees have "placed Ohio in the wrong light in the eyes of the academic world," the statement said.

The protest was signed by Prof. Charles W. Coulter of Ohio Wesleyan, Prof. Morris C. Caldwell of Ashland College, and Prof. S. H. Bing of Ohio University, the president, vice president and secretary-treasurer, respectively, of the society, which was said to represent sociologists of the Ohio colleges.

Although the statement was addressed to Dr. Rightmire and to the trustees, a copy was sent to the governor so he could personally know of the attitude taken by Ohio Sociologists, the officials said.

If they fail to release Clark from the charges, his lawyers will make a fight to have him released on bail from the county jail.

Roger W. Fowler, last witness in the preliminary hearings, could not identify Clark the man who fled from Crawford's office after the shooting.

Ralph Shawhan, a newspaper reporter, was stopped by Judge Sturzenacker in his testimony, the judge ruling that his story could wait until after the election.

The statement frankly demanded "that further consideration be given the case in order that Ohio State University may continue to maintain a reputation for freedom of thought and expression and for scientific examination of actual facts as regards the peculiarities of human behavior."

In protesting, officials of the society declared they were not prompted to take the action because Dr. Miller is a member in good standing, "but because the teaching of sociology requires liberty of expression and freedom of thought."

"Our society," the protest continued, "has an obligation to attack prejudice, intolerance and bigotry that human welfare and social conditions may make progress toward new goals."

"Any action that tends to throttle such expression in the classroom or elsewhere is contrary to the best academic practice and impedes social advancement in the field of human behavior."

PINCHOT HITS POWER TRUST AND UTILITIES

Pictures Trust As Octo- pus Grafting On People

FRENCH LICK SPRINGS, Ind., June 2.—Governor Gifford Pinchot, irrepresible through twenty-five stormy years in politics, shattered the placid serenity on the twenty-third annual conference of governors today with a slashing attack on the power trust and the great utilities interests.

Refusing to be held within the narrow confines of "non-controversial subjects," which are all the conference has heard to date, Gov. Pinchot lashed out at the utilities with both hands. He pictured the power trust as a giant octopus which is progressively swallowing the American people and, if uncontrolled, will completely dominate political and economic life in this country in a few years.

Gov. Pinchot didn't mince words. He accused the utilities of "graft" in their relationship to the public. "I call it graft," he said, "and I am well within my right. Through the device of the write-up, the electric utilities alone are today collecting from the people of Pennsylvania interest on much more than $100,000,000 that was never put into the business."

By the same methods, he asserted, the electric power interests are taking half a billion dollars a year from the nation as a whole.

Gov. Pinchot delivered his speech after the executive committee of the governors conference had deliberated long and earnestly about it. They didn't want anything "controversial" injected into the socially pleasant atmosphere of the party. But the Pennsylvanian held the whip hand. He let it be known that if they didn't let him speak his mind he would issue the speech as a statement and say that "here is what I would have said to the governors if they had not gagged me."

Under the circumstances, the managers decided it would be better to allow him to speak than to put themselves in the position of not being willing to hear him.

Another "controversial" subject was to be thrown into the conference late today by Gov. Albert C. Ritchie (D) of Maryland, who has just as vigorous views on prohibition and states' rights as Pinchot has on power control. Ritchie is to preside over this afternoon's

LIQUOR RAIDS HELD AFTER DRINKING AT BANQUETS IS HEARD

Learn High School Stu- dents Conduct Gay Revels

ST. CLAIRSVILLE, O., June 2.—Spurred by what they declared were five successful blow raids, authorities of Belmont County today launched an investigation into charges of Flushing, O., school board members that high school students at Lafferty, a coal mining village, were gay scenes of liquor revelries.

Orders were issued by officials throughout the district to "mop up," and Sheriff Howard A. Duff indicated today that he will lead raids soon on several suspected bootleg headquarters that have allegedly been supplying high school students with liquor.

Five reputed "joints" were raided by officials following complaints made to members of the Flushing board of education that high school parties were in reality liquor brawls.

At one alleged "joint" officials arrested Mrs. Mary Leo, 37-year-old Austrian woman. She pleaded guilty to operating "The Glory Barn," said by police to have been a popular resort with the high school set, and was fined $200 and costs. Unable to pay, she and her four months old son were placed in jail.

Sunday gave his age as 36 and the former Mauryne La Salle as 25. Mrs. Reichard was named as co-respondent in the divorce suit filed by Mrs. Sunday after a raid on Sunday's Hollywood apartment. Mrs. Reichard has a six-year-old son whose custody was awarded the father when they were divorced.

Marriage Offer May Save Tex Guinan Return Trip

LE HAVRE, France, June 2.—Ordered to leave France by noon tomorrow, Texas Guinan, the Big State's gift to Broadway, today hurriedly considered a proposal of marriage and an offer to appear with her gang at a Monte Carlo night club.

The queen of New York's Mid-night Court was said to have received a letter from Harry Aslett, 31, of London, in which he offered to marry her in order to aid her entrance to the country, from which she was barred last week.

"Say, this guy's got brains," "Tex" was quoted as saying. "Get me the man and I'll marry him."

It was understood that she also had received a wire from a Monte Carlo night club proprietor, inviting her and the "kids" to appear at his club. However, should any of her chorus girls be under twenty-one, they will not be admitted to the casino.

By accepting the offer, Texas might yet outwit the French government, which barred her from the country on the ground that her passport did not permit her to work. No border patrol guards the boundary between Monaco and France and it probably would be easy to slip across to Monte Carlo.

Doubt was expressed that she and her chorus girls would be admitted to Germany or Austria should they ask for admittance. The same restrictions as those in France govern the foreigner who intends to work. She would have to produce a working contract approved by the minister of labor of whichever country she desired to visit.

MURDER OF BROOKLYN SPECIALIST OFFERS BAFFLING MYSTERY

Man Beaten, Strangled, Stabbed Found In Locked Room

NEW YORK, June 2.—Bludgeoned, strangled and stabbed, Dr. George E. Deely, well-known Brooklyn specialist, was found murdered in his bedroom today. It was a real murder mystery.

There were no windows open. The door was locked, apparently from the inside. No one in the house heard any disturbance.

There were many evidences of a struggle in the luxurious apartment. Curtains were jerked from the windows. Tables, chairs and other furniture were overturned.

Directly across the street from the murder house is located a school for girls.

The doctor's body was found today by the wife of the caretaker, in gay colored pajamas, it lay on a costly Oriental rug in the bedroom. A knob-topped stool wrenched from the foot of the doctor's bed lay beside the body. It was apparently the weapon which broke the physician's skull.

There was a vivid red mark on his neck. It indicated the victim was also strangled.

There were knife wounds on his body. There was another knife wound in his throat.

He had apparently started to go to bed when it happened. For the bed covers, still folded, lay on the floor beside the bed.

The crime occurred in a three-story brownstone house on a quiet, fashionable street on Columbia Heights.

Dr. Deely, 45, was a bachelor and one of Brooklyn's foremost physicians and surgeons.

SMITH QUALIFIES WITH ROUND OF 71

CARNOUSTIE, Scotland, June 2.—Clipping a stroke from par figures for a course as difficult as any in the world, MacDonald Smith shot a 71 for the second eighteen holes of qualifying play in the British open golf championship today, assuring himself a place in the championship rounds with a magnificent 36-hole total of 141.

SUNDAY'S SON TO TAKE SECOND WIFE

SAN FRANCISCO, June 2.—George M. Sunday, son of "Billy" Sunday, the evangelist today had filed intention to wed Mauryne Reichard of Hollywood.

Sunday gave his age as 36 and the former Mauryne La Salle as 25. Mrs. Reichard was named as co-respondent in the divorce suit filed by Mrs. Sunday after a raid on Sunday's Hollywood apartment. Mrs. Reichard has a six-year-old son whose custody was awarded the father when they were divorced.

Wallace, was the first arrival. Accompanied by ducks, rabbits and guinea pigs, he came to Columbus and immediately started preparing for a "one man show" he will present during the convention.

SELECTION OF JURY STILL ATTEMPTED

JEFFERSON, O., June 2.—Selection of a jury to hear the first degree murder trial of Mrs. Maude Lowther, 23, quarter-blood Indian girl, charged with the slaying of Mrs. Clara Smith, was continued in common pleas court here today.

As the trial opened for its second session before James C. Ogilvie of Carroll County, sitting here by assignment of the state supreme court, the jury box was tentatively filled with seven men and five women.

TAXICAB DRIVER'S SLAYING SIX YEARS AGO SOLVED AT LAST

Member Of Prominent Family Hid Under Assumed Name

NEW YORK, June 2.—A "murder for a thrill"—the second of its kind in American criminal history—was solved today with the arrest in West Orange, N. J., today of Phillip Knox Knapp, former Cornell student and "black sheep" of a prominent Syracuse, N. Y., family, who confessed to the police that he killed Louis Panella, a taxicab driver, for the "thrill" he got out of it.

"I don't know why I did it, unless it was for the thrill," Knapp told the authorities. "His (Panella's) spectre pursued me for nearly six years."

In some respects, Knapp's "thrill killing" complex was similar to the strange mental attitude of Nathan Leopold and Dick Loeb, the wealthy Chicago youths, who perpetrated the other thrill slaying—the "experimental" murder of little Bobby Franks nearly a decade ago, a crime that shocked the nation.

Knapp thought he could execute the "perfect crime," vanish under an assumed name and avoid detection. He was possessed of an uncontrollable desire for excitement. Self destruction he had considered, he wrote in a letter dated June 25, 1925, about a week before the killing of Panella, but as he expressed it "although the result was desirable, the utter enjoyment of facing death, was absent."

After a world-wide search that lasted six years, Knapp was located early today in West Orange living under the assumed name of Allen K. Phillips. Under this name he had married Miss Eleanor Hill of Boston soon after the slaying of Panella. She told the police this morning she did not have the slightest idea that he was guilty of any crime.

Knapp has been employed as a mechanic for the Public Service Corporation. His wife was unaware of his true identity until the police arrested him.

Extradition proceedings were promptly started to bring Knapp from New Jersey to Long Island to stand trial in Nassau County, N. Y., for the murder of Panella.

The body of Panella, a taxicab driver, was found July 4, 1925, partly buried under slabs of plaster board in the ruins of the old army base hospital at Camp Mills, L. I.

Knapp at that time was a soldier in the aviation detachment at Mitchell Field. Investigation disclosed that Panella had been last seen alive on the night of June 30 with Knapp. The army authorities found that Knapp was missing. He had deserted.

Before leaving, he left a letter to his father, William W. Knapp, a respected civil engineer of Syracuse, in which he said he was haunted by the idea that he would find the "supreme thrill" in taking a human life.

SPANISH REPUBLIC ABOLISHES TITLES

MADRID, June 2.—Beginning today the provisional republic of Spain will refuse to recognize all titles of nobility.

The cabinet issued a decree late last night abolishing titles as a governmental honor and revoking those now held.

The national assembly, which will be elected late this month, will determine what disposition will be made of the titles of the exiled King Alfonso and his family, when it holds its first session on July 14. The government will lose about $300,000 in title taxes by its refusal to grant titles.

GANGLAND WANES IN CHICAGO; EARNINGS CUT SAYS ATTORNEY

BY HARRY BERGMAN
International News Service Staff
Correspondent

CHICAGO, June 2.—The power of the gangster in Chicago is declining and the profits of organized crime are rapidly diminishing, in the opinion of George E. Q. Johnson, United States district attorney here.

Citing facts and figures to support his contentions, the veteran law enforcement official declared that the year 1927 saw the high noon of Chicago's underworld and since that year the star of gangland has steadily descended.

He argued that the reported earnings in 1930 of Chicago's largest crime syndicate—presumably the organization headed by Scarface Al Capone—compare unfavorably with the income of the same ring in 1927.

"In 1927," District Attorney Johnson said, "the income of this one syndicate was $1,775,552.44. In that year Mayor Dever made a desperate effort to halt the gangs that were over-running the city and as a result the income of this syndicate was cut to $930,492. In 1927 a campaign was conducted on the issue of an open town and, although the words of the campaign were within the law, the implications were there for the gangsters to hear. District attorneys and state's attorneys have told me that the gangsters and hoodlums of their cities came to Chicago by the score.

"In 1927 the syndicate's income, therefore, was $1,775,436. And in 1928—the year that will go down in Chicago's history as the year of out and out lawlessness—the syndicate income was $1,641,979.37."

Johnson revealed some of the methods employed by his investigators to ascertain the incomes of gangsters and gang lords and spoke of the difficulties encountered in this type of investigation. Although he did not mention names, he was obviously referring to Ralph Capone, brother of the city's underworld czar, when he said:

"We came across the trail of this man in the course of another investigation. We located his bank. His account had been closed. But there was a peculiar circumstance. Other accounts had been opened under various names, but always with the first name of James—James Carter, James Costello and so on—and these accounts would run for a few months and then be closed, but the new James account would also open with the balance of the old account."

"We called in the bank officials and they protested they did not know who this person was. And yet they had been honoring overdrafts of $4,000 to $6,000 a month. And the officials expected us to believe them. The records had been done away with, so it meant a search through clearing house records. The search was made. "Another investigation was directed in the area where this man was active. The saloonkeepers and gamblers whose checks we ran across in the clearing house records told of giving these checks to a little man. They gave him the check for cashing. One saloonkeeper had bought enough chickens to supply all the hotels in Chicago."

"One of our agents got from the police records a picture of a man fitting the description of the little man of our case. The saloonkeepers identified the picture and it enabled us to connect and organize the various facts in the case."

Kidnaping, according to the district attorney, is rapidly coming to the fore as a lucrative gang activity, replacing other types of racketeering in the big money class. Johnson said:

"The secretary of the crime prevention committee of the Kansas City Association of Commerce told me that business men there in the last three years have paid $800,000 in ransom to kidnap gangs."

Here is Johnson's definition of organized crime: "Organized crime is crime which makes a business of crime."

Johnson pleaded for abandonment of the widely-entertained delusion that all police are allied with the underworld.

"Every gang," he said, "has a pasty-faced crook at the head of it, a crook in collusion with police and politicians. But, all police are not dishonest. Most of them are inherently honest. But, often the arm of the police is paralyzed by corrupt politicians."

The liquor traffic, gambling, vice, kidnaping and the orthodox type of racketeering which consists of preying on business men, trade associations and unions, were listed at the top of gang activities as sources of profit by the district attorney.

Graft in public projects, according to Johnson, is an added and extremely reprehensible form of crime and the establishment of a bureau to audit all public contracts, in his opinion, would virtually eliminate this costly condition. According to figures revealed in his income tax investigations, contractors in twelve public building projects, costing the taxpayers $3,688,987, realized a profit of $2,264,000. This margin of earnings was rendered so heavily disproportionate by the receipt of tribute in the form of graft, Johnson said.

Closer cooperation between county and city authorities in the detection and suppression of crime and racketeering, the district attorney averred, would be a distinct step forward in the reduction of these evils. But above all, he pointed out, it is urgently necessary to educate the public away from its present tendency to tolerate the reign of terror instituted by the gangster and all that he symbolizes.

With Harsh Irritants
"Reach for a LUCKY instead"

When you visit your physician for your periodic health examination, one of the very first things he asks you to do is to open your mouth wide, and to say "Ah." He is examining the delicate lining of your throat. "Ah!" There is not a man or woman who could even make this simple sound, if in the throat there were no Adam's Apple. For your Adam's Apple is your larynx—the voice box containing your vocal chords. And what a delicate piece of Nature's handiwork the Adam's Apple is. A slight cold—even a tiny particle lodged in the throat—and our voice often grows husky. In acute cases, we may even lose our voice for several days. Don't rasp your throat with harsh irritants—Reach for a LUCKY instead—remember, LUCKY STRIKE is the only cigarette in America that through its exclusive "TOASTING" process expels certain harsh irritants present in all raw tobaccos. These expelled irritants are sold to manufacturers of chemical compounds. They are not present in your LUCKY STRIKE. No wonder 20,679 American physicians have stated LUCKIES to be less irritating. COLLEGE SENIORS PRESENT MYSTERY PLAY MONDAY NIGHT

Before an audience which completely filled the Cedarville Opera House, Cedarville College seniors presented "The Creaking Chair," a three-act mystery production, as their annual class play Monday night.

The play, written by Allen Wilkes, was produced by the graduating class under the direction of Mrs. Marvin Borst, wife of the athletic director of the college, and the eleven seniors who composed the cast, displayed considerable dramatic ability.

A men's quartet composed of college students sang selections between acts.

Personnel of the cast: Albert Turner as "Holly," Brenton Frazier as "Aissa," Carmen Frazier as "Anita," Wilma Currie as "Rose," Robert Collins as "Latter," Sarah Rumbaugh as "Sylvia," Helen Powers as "Mrs. Carruthers," Vernon Hickman as "Cutting," Alfred Townsley as "Speed," Joe Foster as "Hart," James Stormont as "Henley," and Brenton Turner assuming a second character as "Bates."

MEMORIAL PROGRAM BY JOINT GRANGES

A memorial program honoring deceased members of Greene and Montgomery County Pomona Granges was a feature of the joint meeting of the two Granges with Spring Valley Grange Wednesday.

The memorial service was in charge of Mrs. Elsie Campbell, Greene County Grange lecturer. The meeting was an all day affair and a covered dish luncheon was served at noon by women of Spring Valley Grange. Final arrangements were made for the Greene County Pomona initiation at Bowersville, Friday evening, June 26, at 8 o'clock and plans were discussed for Grange exhibits at the Greene County fair.

During the lecture hour in the afternoon a program was presented by visitors from Montgomery County and was under the direction of Mrs. Grimes, lecturer.

JAMESTOWN STORES ARE ROBBED MONDAY NIGHT IS REPORTED

Burglars who have been active in Xenia within the past week transferred their base of operations to Jamestown Monday night, according to reports reaching the sheriff's office.

Three robberies in which the total loot obtained was not large, were reported.

Thieves paid a visit to the Thad Miller restaurant on W. Washington St., stealing forty pennies from a cash drawer, seven wrist watches, a few pipes, peanuts and some chewing tobacco, besides helping themselves to sandwiches, cheese, ice cream and pop. The stolen articles were valued at $50.

A hardware store four doors away, operated by Norval Sams, was also burglarized but a flashlight was the only thing stolen. The intruders rummaged through a desk, scattering papers around, and tried to work the combination on a safe without avail.

The methods used in gaining entrance to the restaurant and hardware store were almost identical. At the restaurant a rear window was pried open, the visitors making their exit through a back door, which they unlocked from the inside. A broken rear window was evidence of how the hardware store was entered.

A report also received that a filling station half a mile west of the village had also been broken into the same evening, but details of the burglary were lacking.

The burglaries were investigated Tuesday morning by Sheriff John Baughn and L. A. Davis, county road patrolman, while the officers were on their way to the Mansfield reformatory with a prisoner, William Byrd, recently sentenced to from one to fifteen years for burglary and larceny.

Xenia police learned Monday that Fred O'Leurance, railroad detective, had twice frightened away prowlers from the vicinity of the Ervin Milling Co. grain elevator on S. Whiteman St., on the preceding evening.

The Ladies Aid Society of the White Chapel M. E. Church will meet at the home of Mrs. Foy Coffelt, S. Whiteman St., Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Mr. and Mrs. George Wright, and family, of Akron, spent Memorial Day and the week end here as guests of Mr. Wright's father and sister, Mr. P. A. Wright and Miss Clara Wright, W. Third St.

Mrs. Harry Siefert and Mrs. Hannah Oglesbee, south of Xenia, spent Saturday in Wilmington with relatives.

The Missionary Society of the M. P. Church, Bowersville, will meet at the home of Mrs. George Shirk, Bowersville, Thursday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Myers, Mrs. Catherine Crook and Mrs. Ethel Walsh, Columbus, spent Memorial Day with Mr. and Mrs. Harry Cross, W. Church St.

John, small son of Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Bales, W. Third St., underwent an operation for the removal of his tonsils at the office of a local physician Tuesday morning.

Mrs. John Lanus (Mildred Cross) and daughter, Margaret Louise, have returned to Green Camp, O., after spending two weeks with Mrs. Lanus' parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Cross, W. Church St.

The Missionary Society of the United Brethren Church will meet Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the church.

Dr. B. R. McClellan, S. Detroit St., who has been seriously ill, is now improved and is able to be out.

Dr. Charles Lewis, Washington St., was guest speaker at the weekly luncheon meeting of the Xenia Rotary Club at the Elks' Club Tuesday noon. Dr. Lewis gave an account of his trip to Europe last summer.

RUM RUNNER SLAIN IN CHASE AT SEA

SAN PEDRO, Cal., June 2.—One asserted rum runner was killed, another wounded, and a third arrested in a wild sea chase off Point Hueneme today.

The United States coast guard cutter Arrow ran down and captured the 50-foot speed boat Diamante, with a hail of machine gun bullets, according to a report at the coast guard base, San Pedro.

The Diamante, riddled with bullets and with her three high powered engines disabled, was towed into the harbor here. Aboard the boat the officers reported they found and confiscated 200 cases of liquor worth $30,000.

A report also received that a filling station half a mile west of the village had also been broken into the same evening, but details of the burglary were lacking.

The burglaries were investigated Tuesday morning by Sheriff John Baughn and L. A. Davis, county road patrolman, while the officers were on their way to the Mansfield reformatory with a prisoner, William Byrd, recently sentenced to from one to fifteen years for burglary and larceny.

YELLOW SPRINGS TO DECIDE ON MANAGER AT JUNE ELECTION

Movement for establishment of the commission-manager form of government in Yellow Springs will be initiated with the first of two special elections in the village June 23.

Voters will be asked to decide whether a commission composed of fifteen members shall be chosen to frame a suitable charter for the new form of government, and the ballots will also bear the names of fifteen hand-picked citizens who will constitute this proposed charter commission providing a favorable vote is recorded.

Prospective members of the charter commission are as follows: H. T. Carlisle, G. G. Downey, A. B. Figgins, Harry L. Hackett, Ralph Howell, J. R. Johnson, T. F. Laist, D. A. Magruder, P. J. Moran, E. A. Oster, P. M. Stewart, P. W. Weiss, Jefferson Williams, J. N. Wolford and J. P. Zell.

Approval or disapproval of the charter so framed would then be voted at a second special election, after which at least three commissioners will be duly elected at the regular November election. The new form of government would then begin to function January 1, 1932.

NEW YORK, June 2.—Emil Ludwig, author and biographer, will arrive from Europe today for an American visit. Other arrivals from abroad will include Jascha Heifetz, violinist, and Leon Fraser, American financier and director of the world bank for international settlements.

"ONE EYE'S" WATERLOO

SAN QUENTIN PRISON, Cal.—"One Eye" Connolly, nationally famous gate crasher, has met his Waterloo. He has found one gate he cannot crash. It is the big prison gate here. "I went up to see my old friend 'Kid' McCoy," Connolly said. "I was a few minutes late and they wouldn't let me in. I looked at the gate, and it looked pretty sturdy, so I decided not to bother."

BEES SWARM ON AUTO IN STREET

Bees are busy little insects, as is told by that adage, "busy as a bee," but a swarm of bees was more than busy Tuesday about 11 a. m. when thousands of them, following a queen bee, swarmed on top an automobile parked in front of the Hutchison and Gibney Co., N. Detroit St.

Harry Sutton of the Greene County Hardware Co., who has had experience with the insects finally caught the queen bee and placed her in a box and the others soon followed. The name of the owner of the car was not learned.

TOOK SELF TO JAIL

WASHINGTON, Pa.—"Hello, warden," said Morris Decolati to Warden David Creigh at the county jail here, and extended a paper, "Bearer," the warden read, "Mr. Morris Decolati, of Gallatin, Pa., agrees to come to jail in lieu of a constable. Be as easy on him as possible." Decolati, convicted of an auto violation, got three days when he couldn't pay a fine.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

And we have known and believed the love that God hath to us. God is love; and he that dwelleth in love dwelleth in God, and God in him.—1 John, iv, 16.

SUCCESSFUL EMPIRES

The true genius of the British empire was well stated by Mr. Ramsay MacDonald in his Empire day speech in London, when he said that "expansion in empire must be more and more an expansion of constitutional liberties, finding new forms and methods of expression. The greatness of our empire and its success must depend more and more upon its forms and the political life of its various parts."

Obviously Mr. MacDonald had India in mind, when he enjoined upon his Conservative critics not to forget how and why Great Britain lost her American colonies. There were statesmen in George III's day—Chatham, Burke and others—as enlightened as Mr. MacDonald; but they were overruled by a pigheaded king's Tory advisers, who insisted upon denying their colonial subjects the parliamentary representation to which they believed themselves entitled. Great Britain then learned by experience, what she might have learned from the history of the Roman empire. As John Fiske put it:

"Our experience has now so far widened that we can see that despotism is not the strongest but the weakest form of government; that centralized administrations, like the Roman empire, have fallen to pieces, not because of too much but because of too little freedom; and that the only perdurable government must be that which succeeds in achieving national unity on a grand scale, without weakening the sense of personal and local independence."

The world has seen three great systems of nation making. The Oriental system was based on conquest, without incorporation of the conquered in the conquering nation. The Romans incorporated their far-flung provinces, without giving them representation in the government. The Teutonic (or English) system has included representation, as well as incorporation; and it is this fact which explains why the British empire appears stronger today than it ever has at any period in its extensive past. Canada, Australia, South Africa and the other dominions are now political units coequal with Great Britain under a common sovereign. The effect of their rise to this status has been to strengthen the bonds of sentiment and common interest that no empire together—and which the attempt to govern distant and spirited peoples from Westminster might easily have snapped. The Indian question, if MacDonald is permitted to have his way, will be solved along the same lines, as rapidly as may safely be.

A lesson may be found in the career of the British Empire that Americans might well bear in mind. There are forces working in their own empire of 48 sovereign states to "weaken the sense of personal and local independence" by centralizing more and more authority in Washington. These forces are destructive of state rights and personal liberties. They are heading this country toward the despotism of Rome and "bread and circuses" for the populace. The ultimate end of this process, if forced to its logical conclusion, will not be different in the United States of America from what it was in ancient Rome. What tragic irony it would be if this nation, which first taught Great Britain the error of her earlier colonial ways, were now to fail to learn in turn from Great Britain that the only safe foundation for a body politic is the largest possible measure of local self-government!

LESSON HERE

A curious and instructive story comes from Point Hope, Alaska. Two natives were arrested for a minor offense and placed in the caulkets. They found the place warm and the food good, and they spread the glad news to their friends and neighbors. Immediately the Eskimos in the region commenced breaking the law right and left in order to get in on the good things, and now it has become necessary to build a new and larger jail.

The Point Hope natives have not stumbled on any new idea in picking up their easy graft. The joke about the hobo who throws a brick at a window in order to get a jail sentence that will carry him through the winter months is not a new jest, and it is founded on fact. The shiftless individual, who hunts a convenient and comfortable "poorhouse" of hospitable character when the leaves begin to fall, is a well known type. People of his sort have been assiduously doing their best to "work" institutions for years. The game is an old one and well established. The Alaskan Eskimos are merely putting over a local variation of the dolt system. The Roman mob would appreciate their game if members of it were to revisit the earth.

The development has its lesson for those who care to absorb one. It is a demonstration of the danger of becoming so "humane" and "uplifting" that punishments inflicted on offenders actually make crime attractive, or at least rob detection and incarceration of their terrors. In this part of the world there are penologists who are making the same sort of a mistake the agencies of justice in the Alaskan town made to their cost.

TAKING VACATIONS

Where shall we go and what shall we do? A few million Americans, with the holiday season upon them, are asking themselves and their wives and children that very pertinent question. An assistant professor of nervous diseases at a prominent university tells them one thing not to do. They should not take their vacation on a stop-watch schedule. Aimless play is what most of them need.

The complicated life of urban America has made neurosis the second commonest disease in this country. Colds alone outrank it in frequency. The specialization and monotony of a machine age are considerably responsible for American neurosis; and in order to overcome its ravages on the nervous system, a complete avoidance of monotony and specialization obviously is desirable. "The man who works for hours with great intensity in the office," says the professor, "and then spends two hours watching a steam shovel digging in a vacant lot is a safer risk against nervous exhaustion" than the man who lays out his vacation by time-table.

Americans generally take their vacations as seriously as they do their vocations. They tear about this country or Canada or Europe with nerve-racking speed; and then have to come home to "rest up." They would get a great deal more good out of their annual respite from office and factory routine if they just rambled physically and mentally. The desire to see as much of the world as possible in two weeks or three months is natural and laudable; but the effort expended in covering a maximum of territory in a minimum of time takes all the recreative value out of a vacation. "A book of verses underneath the bough, a jug of wine, a loaf of bread"—and there you have the ideal itinerary, with emphasis on the loaf.

The Michigan state senate has approved a bill for the deportation of alien undesirable which will bring alien communists within its scope. Why not? Why should those who rail at all law and the institutions of government not be made to feel the teeth of the law?

Bo-Broadway

NEW YORK.—Someone described a certain woman the other day as "the kind of person who bounces out of bed, grabs a new day by the throat and grapples with it."

MISLEADING PIE-CRUST

Booksellers have taken up the cudgels against publishers asserting that misleading and untruthful statements are printed on wrappers of many new books and demanding that publishers guarantee the truth of their "blurbs" on a money-back basis.

Expecting a book to live up to its jacket—"blurb" is like demanding that a bottle of Bronx "Scotch" live up to its label.

DUO OF CYRANOS

The Duchess was skimming through a snooty illustrated book review the other night. "Why, that's funny," she said. "They've got a picture of Jimmy Durante here."

She tossed the paper across to me. It was Jimmy Durante at all. It was James Fenimore Cooper. And if you don't think they look alike, stack their picture side by side and get the shock of your life.

A TROUPER'S VALE

The following communication from Louise Mulderer appears in Equity Magazine. It is reprinted here as a touching human document that may mean something to old-timers:

"On the first of April I became a guest of the Actors' Fund of America in the Percy Williams Home, East Islip, L. I., and I find myself deluged with questions as to why I took this step.

"All my life my ambition was to die in harness. I worked as hard as I could, as long as I could, at anything I could—even to Summers in Chautauquas and Winters on the lyceum circuits—anything to stay at work and out of debt. Though generally able to command only a modest salary, I was able to do this and even to take occasional trips abroad and enjoy other luxuries.

"And then the dark clouds came—not alone due to old age, for when I was 72 I embarked on a tour with Bertha Kalich in 'Macbeth' and never missed a performance. But there was a growing scarcity of parts little by little the bank account was dwindling. Nothing today. Nothing at all' from the managers and agents. A futile search for other lines of endeavor! And I couldn't beg. The words remained glued to my lips.

"Wireless after wireless I despatched to the Manager behind the clouds to release me from this role. Always the answer came back, 'Not yet!' But of, when it seemed darkest the Actors' Fund shed its beam of gentle light across my black horizon.

"There is no more need for me to answer questions as to how I am and what I am doing, with a ghastly smile, and tears in my throat, or to cheat myself or others with my replies, or to hide my age.

"Now at 77 I bid my adored profession good-bye, without bitterness and with the deepest gratitude and heartfelt appreciation for Daniel Frohman, the late Percy Williams and all those who have labored to provide a haven of rest, comfort and happiness in these wonderful homes.

"The next to the last chapter is finished. I can only wait with interest and without fear the completion of that last chapter, of which, now, only a few pages remain."

THE QUESTION BOX

Central Press Wash. Bureau—

Answers to questions on information and fact can be obtained by writing to Central Press Bureau, 1435 East Twelfth street, Cleveland, O., and enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope. No answers will be given to marital, medical or legal questions, nor will the estimated value of gold coins be given.

How many representatives have the states of Minnesota, Kansas, Wisconsin and Missouri? Minnesota has 10 representatives, Missouri 16, Kansas 8 and Wisconsin 11.

Buckshot War

What was the Buckshot war? The election in Pennsylvania in 1838 gave rise to a controversy between the Whigs and the Democrats and grew so heated that one side threatened the other with buckshot. No actual fighting took place, however.

Largest University

What is the largest institution of higher learning in this country? When was it founded? New York university, in New York City, with an enrollment of more than 33,000, is the largest university in America. It was established in 1831.

Oslo and Christiania

Why is it that no mention is made lately of Christiania, capital of Norway? The name of this city was changed to Oslo in 1925.

The Elephant's Trunk

Why is the elephant's trunk so called? This is a corruption of the word trunk, formerly used in England because of the sound made by the elephant resembling the trumpet.

NOTE: The following pamphlets may be obtained by sending 10 cents in coin and a large stamped self-addressed envelope for each to Central Press Bureau, P. O. Box 126, Washington, D. C.: "Who's Who in Hollywood," "Seeing Washington," "Summing," Charles P. Stewart's treatise on "Our Government," and "The World War."

ANOTHER HOLDUP!

NO ECONOMIC RELIEF SEEN THROUGH EXTRA SESSION OF CONGRESS

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON.—Ever since Congress adjourned, progressives have been so insistently demanding a special session to relieve economic distress, that one almost inclines to suspect the individual who opposes an extra call of actually wanting unemployment to continue.

Criticism of Representative Charles A. Eaton of New Jersey illustrates this disposition.

Following the presidential refusal to summon the national legislators together before the constitutional date for them to meet in December, Representative Eaton not only congratulated Mr. Hoover upon his attitude, but added that "it would be a great advantage to the country if we could omit the next regular session."

With one voice, "If omission of the next session would be such a blessing," inquire the progressives, "why not omit all future sessions?"

Yet, on investigation, one discovers that Representative Eaton is a staunch upholder of popular government, even though he speaks somewhat Hamiltonianly of the general intelligence of the people, remarking that the worst fault one can find with congress is the faithfulness with which it reflects the folk who elect it.

All the same, it is clear that the Jersey lawmaker would not abolish congress if he could. He refers to post-war dictatorships as throwbacks to the dark ages—but predicts they will not last long. As for the rights of workingmen, he is as militant a defender of the high wage principle as any trades unionist I ever met.

Nevertheless, Representative Eaton manifestly is a conservative—but a conservative for the sake of what he evidently conceives to be the greatest good for the greatest number; not in the interest of any small group, at the expense of the overwhelming majority. It is rather natural to think of conservatism as a privileged class philosophy; agree with him or not, there are no indications that it is thus interpreted by the Jersey congressman.

(Harking back two or three decades, one recalls the Representative Eaton of today as the Rev. Dr. Charles A. Eaton, formerly well known in the Baptist pulpit, as "John D. Rockefeller's pastor"—before he had turned to specialization in the field of industrial relationships.)

Having identified him theologically, as well as congressionally, "The world," says Representative Eaton, "has come to a pause, if not a full stop, between two epochs."

"In the last epoch political equality was developed. 'The present epoch is economic. The war divided them. The war was not the cause of what has followed; it was the effect of what had gone before."

"The political epoch began with an insufficiency of products; an inadequacy of the necessities of life. With the passage of time production increased, but with increase came inequalities of distribution which finally climaxed the war."

"With the war's end we have entered upon an economic epoch; an epoch still in its initial stages of adjustment."

"Due to the war," continued the congressman, "the world's political machinery suffered various dislocations, which, however, will be temporary, for, having passed through our period of political preparation, we are relatively familiar with politics and know something of the nature of the repairs and improvements required to adapt them to changing conditions."

"But our new economies still are a puzzle to us. 'Scant production, with privation and occasional famines, resulting from literally not enough to supply all wants, has been transformed into what seems to be over-production, with suffering on account of our very abundance."

"Our old economic system is inapplicable to the economics of today. 'What alterations are needed we are not yet sure."

"One thing," said the representative, "is certain—'Our present problem is economic, not political. 'We must solve it by economic, not political means."

"Reasoning, as we are in the habit of reasoning, in political terms, our first inspiration is—a law, a policeman and a snapper. 'Hopeless!"

"Not only is our problem economic and not political; it is a problem of world and not merely of national economies."

"Why not an extra session of congress? Because it can do no good. Congress can adopt only political, not economic laws—and, if it could pass economic laws, it could pass them only nationally, not for the whole world."

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

By MRS. MARY MORTON

MENU HINT
Cold Sliced Chicken
Small New Potatoes
Creamed Whole Asparagus
Fruit Salad
Tea
This menu may be served for either luncheon or supper. It would also make a good Sunday evening lunch. You could omit the asparagus if you wished.

Today's Recipes
Fruit Salad.—Six slices pineapple (fresh or canned), one banana, one large orange, twelve straw-berries, lettuce, dressing. Cut the oranges into circular slices, disc the bananas and halve the strawberries. On each bed of lettuce place one slice of pineapple or pineapple ring, then cut it into sections, still maintaining the ring. Section the orange slices and lay a layer of these on top of the pineapple. Fill the ring with banana discs and cover salad with dressing, whipped cream dressing preferably. Top the salad with halves of strawberries.

Suggestions
Chocolate Bar Frosting
To make a new, easy and different cake frosting, place a milk chocolate bar on top of each hot layer. After about three minutes, they will have melted sufficiently to spread evenly over the cake.

Sweetenings
Granulated, brown and powdered sugars, as well as corn syrups and honey are all commonly used for sweetening. There is a distinction between powdered sugars which has caused some confusion because it has not been clearly understood. Powdered sugar is simply cane or beet sugar more finely ground than granulated. It is slightly crystalline, which makes it undesirable for very smooth mixtures. Confectioners' sugar is a powdered sugar very much more finely ground and is, therefore, smoother and more satisfactory for certain types of work. Cornstarch is usually added to the confectioners' sugar in small quantities to prevent lumping, but it does not interfere at all with the satisfactory use of the sugar.

STAR LORE

By Arthur DeV. Carpenter

Every beginner at star-gazing should be reminded that the evening sky in June is the time when constellation Scorpius containing the largest star known—Antares—is coming into splendid view away to the southeast. It has three conspicuous stars in its head forming a wide open curve. From the concave side of this curve a line of stars may be traced streaming toward the southeast, and finally the scorpion's tail makes a sharp curve to the west with two rather bright stars at the end—the stinger. Antares is the big red star at the scorpion's heart, equidistant from two fainter stars. Antares is 400 million miles in diameter.

Human Beings Differ

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

We began this week by discussing the subject of mucous colitis, and pointing out that among the causative factors of the disease is a certain type of body build; that 58 per cent of the people who have mucous colitis were of this build.

Then in yesterday's article we discussed briefly the new researches in medicine as to body structure in its predisposition for the individual to acquire certain diseases. Certain people, for instance, have a stomach ulcer type of face, and more of them seem to get ulcer of the stomach than other people.

The way in which human beings differ in build most frequently is in being long or wide. If you range up any fairly good number of your friends you will find that they will fall into one or the other of these divisions: you won't have to strain your imagination much to classify them in that way. Of course, there will be extreme examples of each kind, and many intermediate types, so that you can create a third division, if you wish, of normals.

The wide people flare away from the middle, and the long people hang up and down the middle. The wide people have round faces, short necks, arms and legs, and wide chests and abdomens. The long people have long faces, long necks, long arms, long legs, long chests and long abdomens.

These external differences correspond to certain differences in the structure and form of the internal organs. And also to differences in the predisposition to disease. Thus the wide people have high, wide stomachs and good digestion; high bowels and normal evacuation; wide hearts and a likelihood to heart disease in middle life, high blood pressure, apoplexy, increase of weight and diabetes.

The long people are subject to certain stresses also. Their long, thin lungs seem adapted to the development of tuberculosis. What interests us in this study is that their stomach and internal architecture predisposes them to dyspepsia and constipation and other digestive disorders. It is hard to prove absolutely that the low stomach creates dyspepsia or the low bowel constipation, because we frequently find people with the stomach and intestines low who are in perfect health. But, by and large, certain types of digestive complaint go with this type of body.

In connection with mucous colitis we see that in a study of 500 cases 58 per cent of the patients have the long or viscerotropic body build. With them constipation usually alternates with periods when there is a painful and crampy discharge of mucus from the bowel. These patients are also subject to forms of stomach dyspepsia—gaseous distention following meals, nausea, lack of appetite—possibly indicating that the food is not thoroughly prepared for its journey through the digestive tract. They are also liable to intestinal indigestion and stasis—sometimes of a fermentative and even putrefactive type. Focal infection either of the teeth, tonsils, gallbladder or from other sources, adds a final touch for a body prepared to blow up with under attack and dramatic intestinal crises—which is what mucous colitis is.

Editor's Note: Six pamphlets by Dr. Clendening can now be obtained by sending 10 cents in coin for each and a self-addressed, stamped envelope, to Dr. Logan Clendening, in care of this paper or Central Press Association, 1435 East Twelfth street, Cleveland, O. The pamphlets are: "Indigestion and Constipation," "Reducing and Gaining," "Infant Feeding," "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes," "Feminine Hygiene" and "The Care of the Hair and Skin."

Couple Can't Be Happy

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

"DEAR VIRGINIA LEE: I am 22 and am engaged to a boy several years my senior. We both feel that we can't be happy without each other, but still sometimes we don't know if we love each other as much as we should."

What do you think we should do under the circumstances? We parted several times before we became engaged, but couldn't stay apart.

"GRATEFUL." How about your tastes. Grateful? You are congenial? Like practically the same people, the same things? Enjoy going about together? Like exchanging ideas or being companionably silent?

Is the attraction physical merely? If so, you do well to doubt whether you could be happy together. That allure soon palls and then you have no ground for comradeship. The best union combines fellowship with charm or personality.

If, as you say, you have separated several times and are never happy so, I should say you could safely marry, provided you are similar in tastes. No two people are always ideally happy in one another's companionship. They are bound to bore one another, or misunderstand occasionally. The thing to do, if you marry, is to care sufficiently so that you can be tolerant of one another's idiosyncrasies, allow plenty of scope for individuality, don't think that you always have to be together, keep fresh for one another with plenty of interests. If you do this there is no reason why two intelligent people shouldn't be very happy living together.

HAPPY BOY: I can't see a reason in the world why you shouldn't keep on going with the girl you like and who is crazy about you. By the time she is a little stubborn.

Commends Massage for Obesity

By GLADYS GLAD

While diet and exercise are generally accredited with being the most effective means of reducing weight, the value of massage for breaking down the fatty tissues isn't recognized by the vast majority of us. But in the places where beauty means the holding on to a weekly salary, the masseur has reached an eminence that is nothing short of astounding to the novice in reduction methods. Many a Hollywood beauty would be job-hunting if it were not for the skillful masseurs who know how to pummel the fat off the right places, and keep Hollywood figures pleasing to the eye of the General Public.

The lovely Vilma Banky is one of the Hollywood sirens who had her figure remodeled by massage. When she first came to America her figure, although excellent, according to European standards, didn't correspond at all with America's ideas of figure beauty. So she placed herself in the hands of an expert masseur—and you yourself probably have often seen and admired the results.

However, self-administered massage is not an advisable method of reduction for the average woman who is generally overweight. In the first place it takes off inches, rather than pounds. It breaks down fatty tissues locally, and arouses circulation to carry the residue away. And in the second place it is difficult for the average woman to do this massaging correctly herself. It cannot be done with a light and airy touch. The strokes must be heavy to be effective, and yet not sufficiently heavy to bruise the flesh. It can prove injurious if incorrectly done. And therefore, it is best to have such massaging done by an expert masseur.

However, those women for whom through school you will both be more sure of your feelings and, as you say, will be in a better position to support a wife.

RASPBERRY: I don't feel at all like laughing at you, my dear. I think it is disgusting that young girls have to pass corners where such loafers congregate, and to put up with their remarks.

However, I think you would be much wiser not to answer the boys at all. They would not be gotten nearly so much fun out of the occurrences if you had paid no attention to them. And when you get angry that amused them immensely, of course, and they don't think you are fair game for their teasing.

In the future pay no attention to them whatever. Too bad you are compelled to pass that particular corner every day. If they really annoy you you could speak to your town policeman and he could disperse them, but the best way of handling the situation is to pay no attention whatever to them, either by word or action.

HOPE: Maybe the boy wanted an excuse to break up, or maybe he stopped going with you, just as he says, because he didn't think it fair never to have any money to take you out. It is his place to make up, as he made the break.

LONELY FRECKLES: Wonder how the first girl felt when you gave her up for the second. However, no use thinking too much about that, as you love the other. Keep right on trying to make up with the one you love, and if she really does care for you, she'll give in in time, even if she is a little stubborn.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

Moles

M. J. M. and J. B.: It is dangerous for you to attempt to remove moles yourself. They can be safely removed by a reliable skin specialist.

Light Hair

Charlotte: The egg shampoo and its accompanying rinse will help to keep the hair from darkening. The methods of administering this shampoo and rinse are fully described in my "Beauty Culture" booklet.

Superfluous Hair

Lu: I would not consider the light down on your face superfluous. A dark or long growth would be disfiguring, but not the fuzz you describe. You might use a bleach, if you wish. The preparations you name are not, to my knowledge hair growers.

EDITOR'S NOTE: While it is impossible for Miss Glad to answer beauty questions by mail, she will be happy to send you her pamphlets on "The New Figure" and "Beauty Culture" if you will write her, care of this paper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope and 10 cents in coin for each, to cover cost of printing and handling. For her articles on "Care of the Feet and Legs," 2 cents in coin for each, and a self-addressed, stamped envelope are required. Personal questions on beauty will be answered through Miss Glad's daily column.

DROP LOOP LEADERS BY DOUBLE VICTORY HERE MONDAY NIGHT

Early Scoring Helps;
Langs Automatically
Take First Place

The Downtown Country Club softball team believes in returning good for evil.

Conscious-stricken over their recent unkind act in demoting the Lang Chevrolets from first place in the National League standing, the Downtowners made amends by elevating the city champions back again into the league's uppermost berth.

Stepping high, wide and handsome in a double-header, the Downtowners dealt the championship hopes of the Red Wings a crushing blow by administering two defeats to this hitherto unbeaten team in a twin bill at Cox Field.

The scores of the games were 7 to 2 and 6 to 1 and the dual triumph boosted the Downtowners to second place, only a few percentage points behind the Chevros.

The D. T. C. Club got the jump on the Red Wings in the first innings by scoring four runs after two were out, and from then on it was comparatively easy sailing. With two down and the bases empty, they straight singles by Huxton, Parrett, LeSourd, Prugh and Higgins produced four tallies.

An error and a sacrifice fly added another run in the fourth and two more runs came in the fifth on a walk to LeSourd, single by Prugh and double by Higgins.

The Red Wings scored twice in the fourth on P. Fuller's single, Frame's error and a timely single by Wakely.

The Downtowners obtained fourteen hits as compared with five for the Red Wings in this contest. Prugh hit safely three times for the winners and P. Fuller contributed a single and double for the losing team.

Following their first game policy, the Downtowners also wasted no time in scoring up the second game when they scored three runs in the first inning on Wilson's single, an error and a home run by "Polly" Parrett to left field. An error and Parrett's single added another in the third and two more tallies came in the fifth without the aid of a hit when the Red Wing defense collapsed. Three errors did it.

The lone Red Wing marker came in the fourth when Burnett doubled, went to third on a wild pitch or something and scored on an out at first. In this game the Downtowners made only three hits and the Red Wings two. Parrett batted perfectly in this game, hitting a home run and single and walking once.

Frame pitched both games for the winners and Pino Perrine was on the mound for the Red Wings in each contest.

Fielding features during the double-header were difficult catches turned in by Snell, Wakely, LeSourd and Parrett, the one by Snell, Red Wing third baseman, being a pretty one-handed stab of a hard liner over third.

The All-Stars and St. Bridg will play an American League double-header Tuesday night. Lineups:

CHAMP TRIES DIRT
ROBY, Ind., June 2.—Lou Schneider, winner of the 500-mile Memorial Day Race at Indianapolis and Fred Frame and Ralph Hepburn who followed him across the line will renew their rivalry here Sunday in a 100-mile A. A. A. race on a dirt track.

TREASURY BALANCE
WASHINGTON, June 2.—Treasury balance as of May 29, $41,060,313.95; expenditure, $6,119,170.75; customs receipts, $27,463,104.13.

AGE-AIR-TOUR RECORD
CULA VISTA, Cal., June 2.—Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Harris, aged 80 and 74 respectively, claimed a travel record. They returned from an airplane tour to Portland, Oregon, where they visited their son, to Salt Lake City, where a daughter lives and on their 54th wedding anniversary arrived here by train.

Their original trip to California, from the middle west, was by ox cart.

SHOEMAKERS LOSE TO PAINTERSVILLE
Experiencing an off day in the field, the Krippendorf softball team, leader of the American League, was swamped by the Paintersville Famous Autos, 20 to 8 in a non-league game on the Washington Park diamond Monday night.

Batters had a large evening as the two teams combined them rapped off twenty-seven hits, including five doubles, four triples and two home runs.

Krippendorf used four pitchers in a vain effort to stem the tide but none were effective. Luttrell pitched the first six innings and was succeeded in turn by Anderson, Christ and Gordon. "Atlas" Smith, Famous Auto hurler, was also subjected to a heavy bombardment but survived the cannonading and lasted the full distance.

Paintersville collected fifteen hits and made three errors while Krippendorf obtained an even dozen blows and made seven fielding misuses. Score by Innings:

Krippendorf 0 0 1 1 2 3 0 1—8 12 7
Paintersville 0 2 0 5 2 6 0 5 x—20 15 3

JAMESTOWN MERCHANTS TAKE TWO VICTORIES OVER WEEK END

The Jamestown Independents won two home games over the week end, defeating the Dayton Third St. Merchants, 10 to 5, in a Memorial Day game, and triumphing over the Dayton Panthers 9 to 8 in a twelve-inning contest Sunday afternoon. Both games were played at Jenk's Park.

Buck Evans pitched the full game for Jamestown Saturday and although allowing sixteen hits, was airtight in the pinches. The Independents bunched their dozen hits with six opposition errors to good advantage.

Lee started on the mound for Jamestown in Sunday's game with the Panthers but retired under fire in the fourth and Evans was summoned to the rescue. Evans held the enemy quite safe, blanking the visitors during the last eight innings.

Jamestown was behind, 8 to 7, when it took its turn at bat in the last of the ninth, but scored one run to tie the score and then won in the twelfth. Evans winning both the game when with two down and a runner on second, he singled over the middle bag. Following are the scores of the two games by innings:

Jamestown 200 101 100—5 16 6
Merchants 100 100 100—10 12 2
Batteries: Merchants—Crowder, and Stephenson; Jamestown—Evans and Jacobs.

Pathners 130 400 000 000—8 11 6
Jamestown 300 220 001 001—9 14 0
Batteries: Panthers—Palatus, Greshop and Kremin; Jamestown—Lee, Evans and Jacobs.

N. Y. STOCK MARKET
NEW YORK, June 2.—After the early shake-out had forced most of the favorites to new low levels for the year, stocks in all sections of the market staged a moderate rally this morning. Trading on the big board was at a fast pace in the first half-hour, with a total of 700,000 shares changing hands.

For the convenience of these fans, the Guild reveals that the character assignments parallel the picture roles as follows: Mrs. Joseph B. Mason plays the lead part taken on the screen by Ann Harding; Fred Snyder has the part in which Conrad Nagel appears on the screen; I. M. Hyman plays the part taken by Clive Brook; Mrs. Steele Poague has the role portrayed by Cecilia Loftus; Judge George Thorn will take the part assigned to P. Heggler; Judge E. D. Smith has the role which David Torrence plays; Miss Helen Hurley has the same part as Flora Sheffield; and Mrs. Alice Ruthrauff has the part played on the screen by Beryl Mercer.

This leaves Harry A. Higgins as "Mr. Dill," George Prugh as "Richard Hare," Peter Shagin as a policeman, Jean Mason as "Little Willie" and Elizabeth Hardy as "Wilson." The difference lies in the fact that while the Guild will interpret the opus as originally written by Mrs. Woods, the screen version diverges slightly from original, as is customary with screen versions.

The play was written in 1861 and will be costumed in that period by the Guild players. The performances here are open to the public and there are no reserved seats, the tickets being obtainable at the box office or at any of several downtown places where they are now on sale.

AUTO KILLS MAN
ZANESVILLE, O., June 2.—After being questioned briefly about an automobile accident in which Joseph Hammond, 50, auto mechanic, was killed on the National Highway near here, Edward Annabahn, Pittsburgh motorist, today was exonerated of all blame.

PLANT CLOSED DOWN
DOVIDA, O., June 2.—Employees of the Dover plant of the American Sheet and Tin Plate Co. were temporarily jobless today, following an order suspending operations for an indefinite period. Promise that work will be resumed in the near future was made by company officials.

ACTRESS IS FREED BY RENO DIVORCE
RENO, Nev., June 2.—Germaine W. Herschfield, French actress, today was among the thirty-four granted divorces in the weekly field day in Reno courts. At the same time the county clerk issued twenty-nine marriage licenses and issued figures showing that licenses in May outnumbered divorces granted by 548 to 331.

Mrs. Herschfield was married to Ben C. Herschfield, Hollywood motion picture producer and director in Paris in 1919. She was given the decree on grounds of cruelty and custody of their 12-year-old daughter is divided.

future publication, but would be the judge of whether the publisher overstepped the bounds. This, he said, becomes censorship. The chief justice said: "The importance of this immunity (of the press) has not been lessened. While reckless assaults upon public men, and efforts to bring obloquy upon those who are endeavoring faithfully to discharge official duties, exert a baleful influence and deserve the severest condemnation in public opinion, it cannot be said that this abuse is greater, and it is believed to be less, than that which characterized the period in which our institutions took shape.

"Meanwhile, the administration of government has become more complex, the opportunities for malfeasance and corruption have multiplied, crime has grown to more serious proportions, and the danger of its protection by unfaithful officials and of the impairment of the fundamental security of life and property by criminal elements and official neglect, emphasize the primary need of a vigilant and courageous press, especially in great cities.

"The fact that the liberty of the press may be abused by miscreant purveyors of scandal does not make any the less necessary the immunity of the press from previous restraint in dealing with official misconduct. Subsequent punishment for such abuses as may exist is the appropriate remedy, consistent with constitutional privilege.

The chief justice emphasized that newspapers are subject to libel laws.

CHAPTER 55

DICK did not refer again to what he had said about having something to tell her, until they had finished with an excellent dinner. His hopes were fulfilled. No other guests found the secluded inn of the pine-wooded hills.

So they drew their Windsor chairs up before the fire, at their amiable hostess' invitation, and looked at each other with the wonder of being alone, together, again. Mary wondered what he was going to say and Dick wondered how he would say it. So they stared into the fire for confused, thoughtful moments.

Finally, he began, "When you said last night that you owed me your kindness, Mary—did you mean that was the real reason why you are being kind to me?" His eyes searched her face and he reached over to take her hand, awkwardly.

"Why—no, of course not," she almost whispered.

"Then you—do forgive me—"

"Oh, Dick—there really is nothing to forgive. You couldn't help it that you loved someone else. I know—and I'm sorry you were—"

He looked at her with amazement. "Well, you don't need to pity me about that. I count myself a lucky man. I don't deserve to have been prevented from making a foolish mistake. Oh, Mary—that's just the rotten part of it. As you say—I had loved her—but I didn't—not for a moment," he confessed, ashamed. "Just a damned fool, that's all!"

Mary rejoiced. "He never loved her for a moment. He was mine—mine, all the time, all the time."

Her other hand pressed his and he held it instantly, so that they held each other's.

"I am afraid to ask you, Mary—could you love me yet, do you suppose? Even when I tried to deny you, I knew that it was you whom I loved all the time."

"Oh, Dick, I've never stopped loving you—not for a minute. I couldn't, even when I tried. I did try, but it was no use. There were tears of joy in the sweet, husky voice—just a dewy sweetness which was all that was left of her tears of grief.

He knelt down beside her and put his arms about her, with adoration.

"I feel that I had been away on a long and difficult journey, and had just come home—to you, sweetheart."

Her fingers timidly caressed his fine, shining hair, and her throat ached with the joy that filled her.

"And I am so glad to have you home again—with me, dear."

"When shall we be married, darling. Make it soon, please."

She gasped at his sudden haste. "Oh, my dear, not for a long time—not until you have saved enough money to go into business."

"But that might not be for several years. My funds are growing well in spite of dull business, but several hundred thousand dollars is a lot of money, actually. It doesn't sound big, as money is reckoned these days; but getting it is something else again. Let's not wait for that."

Mary wanted to agree with him, to tell him that she was ready even now; but she resolved that even for the sake of love, she would never hurt Dick's chances for success. She shook her head slowly. "No, Dick, I shall be ready whenever you are ready, but I think we should keep to our first plans, that we made—months ago."

"You are so sensible dear; but how can I be sensible about anything so maddening as you are?" he deplored. "But we can be engaged, honey?"

"Of course, if you wish," softly. "I do, and I never want to be free again—from you."

He withdrew his arms from about her, to reach into his vest pocket. "Will this bind the bargain?"

"Oh, Dick, you shouldn't!" she cried, with contradictory delight over the platinum-mounted solitaire.

He took her hand and held it, reverently, while his earnest eyes held her own. "No one has worn this ring—except someone I loved very much—"

Mary stared in surprise—"and that was my mother, darling. This ring belonged to her, and I have never found any one whom I wanted to wear it except you."

He slipped the beautifully chased circlet over her little pink finger, and kissed it gently.

Mary could not speak for awhile, her emotion was so intense. She just held Dick in her arms and relaxed in his, utterly content.

It seemed to Mary that night, as though they drove home through a different world than that which they had passed through in the morning. It had been a beautiful morning—it was a radiant night. The universe vibrated with the melody of the song in her heart. Every moment she was deliciously conscious of the new ring on her finger. It possessed her. It was Dick's ring, and she belonged to Dick.

Once, on the way, he parked the car beside the road and took her in his arms. "Will you let me tell you again how I love you, Mary?"

"I never can hear that enough," she whispered. "Tell me a thousand times, and it will never be enough."

"I'll tell you a thousand times in a thousand ways, sweetheart. How do you like this way?"

When she could speak again, she sighed. "That was so sweet, Dick, darling. I don't know what way I like the best. Anything and everything you do, is sweet."

"I'll try to keep my good reputation with you. I've known all the time that I wanted and needed you, Mary, but you make me wonder now how I ever lived without you. I guess I had to lose you to know you were meant for me."

Mary reflected that those winter months really had not been lived—she had endured them, only. She had ached and waited for this.

She went to sleep that night feeling free and clean and ready for anything—a like a winged goddess of power and freedom. Nothing, she thought, ever could be wrong again. No matter what else might happen in the whole world, it would come out all right—because she and Dick were reunited.

But it was only the following morning that her world became chaos again, when a tremendous problem confronted her at the office.

Even before that, the first incident of the day was disturbing. Mom was up to prepare her breakfast, although Mary continually protested against it.

But Mom always insisted, "Don't be talkin' about me layin' abed at my age, child. I like to get up mornings—I have all my life, so it's a habit with me. You can't teach an old dog new tricks."

Mary would sigh resignedly. Well promise me you will lie down and rest today, won't you?

Then Mom would promise to take a nap later in the day.

On that Monday morning after Mom became engaged to Dick, Mom had a message for her which she had come in too late to get the night before.

"That fellow named Martin Frazier, called up three times yesterday to see if you was home yet, though I told him the first time that you wouldn't be home until late, most likely."

"Oh, Mary, gasped, with surprise and consternation. "So Martin is back in town. Well, I don't care if he called a dozen times. Mom, I have the most wonderful news in the world to tell you."

She threw her arms about Mom and gave her a resounding kiss on one cheek and then on the other.

"There's now look at that—!" holding up her hand for her mother to see the new ring.

"My stars! Is it Dick, after all? Well, I never saw the like of the way engagement rings have been flyin' around here this winter. It's like playin' fruit basket upset—someone gets left out every time there's a mix-up, and now it's that fellow Frazier, I suppose."

She was almost as delighted as Mary was happy, because she knew that her daughter wanted things this way. "Well, I can see you're happy, and I reckon Dick has come to his senses, finally. I'm glad, Mary. Bless you. You're a good daughter, and will make a good wife."

She kissed Mary fondly, and her eyes were wet with tears. "How about making a good mother?" Mary asked shyly.

"Now, do get along—it's late, and you'll miss your train if you don't hurry," Mom pretended to be shocked.

Mary was surprised to find Foster already at the office. He was pacing the floor of his private room, and his face was haggard.

Effort To Rebroadcast English Race Wednesday

By MILDRED MASON

An effort to broadcast the world's turf classic, the English Derby at Epsom Downs, will head programs on the air Wednesday. If rebroadcasting plans are successful the race will be heard over an NBC network through WJZ and associated stations from 8:45 to 9:15 a. m.

Two American owned horses, Japoco, owned by Marshall Field, of Chicago, and Sir Andrew, owned by William Woodward, of New York, will be in the group to face the barrier.

Columnist On Air

Heywood Brown, New York newspaper columnist, will speak on a Socialist reply to the Pope in a broadcast over an NBC-WEAF network Wednesday from 5 to 5:15 p. m. Brown's talk will be presented under the auspices of the League of Industrial Democracy. He was a Social candidate in the fall of 1930. Stations carrying the program are not listed.

To Honor Damrosch

The semi-centennial in the brilliant career of Walter Damrosch, dean of American composers, will be celebrated in a special hour's program in his honor over an NBC network Wednesday evening from 8:30 to 9:30 o'clock. Damrosch will direct a symphony orchestra in the interpretation of several of his own works. Deems Taylors, noted American composer and author, will serve as master of ceremonies. Damrosch's career, since his public debut with the May Festival in the Seventh Regiment Armory fifty years ago, will be reviewed by John Erskine, head of the Juilliard Foundation. Many persons famous in the world of music and the New York social world will be present in the NBC studios when the program is broadcast.

To Interview Illustrator

James Montgomery Flagg, noted artist and illustrator, will be interviewed by Grantland Rice, sports writer, during the Coca Cola program over an NBC network through WSAI, Cincinnati, Wednesday at 9:30 p. m. Flagg will talk mainly on "Why I Hate All Sports."

Introducing Ramona!

Ramona, one of the most recent additions to the artists' staff of WLW, has become so popular with WLW listeners that she has won for herself a regular position on the weekly programs of that station. Ramona in private life is Miss Ramona Davies of Kansas City and began her career with the Kansas City Night Hawks following her graduation from the Conservatory of Music in that city. She is an accomplished piano soloist as well as vocalist. Her picture appears in this column today.

AUTOIST FINED AND SENTENCED TO JAIL

Fine of $100 and costs, sentence of thirty days in jail and forfeiture of driving rights for six months was the penalty meted out by Municipal Judge E. Dawson Smith Monday to Troy Leath, operator of a filling station on the Wilmington Pike, a mile from Xenia, who pleaded guilty to operating an auto while intoxicated.

Leath was arrested as the aftermath of an auto collision on the Springfield-Xenia Pike near Goes Sunday night. Leath suffered fractures of two ribs and cuts on the chin and the driver of the second auto, Mrs. Alma Moore, 34, 14pua, sustained two rib fractures and a broken breast bone. Authorities charged Leath with driving on the wrong side of the highway.

GREENE COUNTIAN ENJOYING CLUB TRIP

Everett Bailey, Beef Club champion of Greene County, is one of nine Ohio 4-H Club champions who Monday afternoon began a complimentary trip to Pittsburgh, Washington, Baltimore, Annapolis, Philadelphia and Atlantic City, provided by the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad.

Members of the party first paid a brief visit Monday at Governor George White's office in Columbus, and were then taken on an inspection tour of the state house.

The trip East will last a week and the champions will be shown the different points of interest by W. H. Palmer, state club leader, of Ohio State University.

The Theater

Stardom waits Joel McCrea, former Pomona College athlete, who is cutting quite a figure these days not only in the films but in Hollywood's social whirl.

Only a little removed from his discus-throwing days, the six-foot-two leading man has been chosen for the second time to play opposite Constance Bennett in her next picture, "Salvaged," which Tay Garnett and Tom Buckingham wrote originally for Helen Twelvetrees.

After the Bennett picture, Joel returns to RKO, his home company, to star in "The Mexican Quarter," the promotion culminating one of the most rapid rises in recent cinstory is announced. Fox enters the list with "Alimony Queens" by Vernie E. Conley. The cast will contain such well-known players as Warner Baxter, John Bennett, Sally Eilers and Una Merkel. Paramount has already committed itself to "Road to Reno" with Buddy Rogers and Carmen Barnes. First National plans "Merry Wives of Reno" with Loretta Young and RKO intends to kid the divorce racket in "Six Weeks in Reno," the new Bert Wheeler-Robert Woolsey comedy.

One of the companies still silent is Metro and it probably has a story in preparation. Some studios have adopted the practice of camouflaging plots under different titles to keep competitors in the dark.

Jim Musick, fullback for University of California is to be found these days working in Jimmy Savo's comedies at RKO.

Josef von Sternberg who is credited with discovering Dietrich in Germany, where he directed her first in "The Blue Angel," wrote the story and directed "Dishonored" in which the German blonde appears with Victor McLaglen, Lew Cody, Warner Oland, Barry Norton and others.

William Powell plays a "perfect-lover but non-heroic" role in "Ladies' Man" at the Bijou Thursday. The film was made from the novel by Rupert Hughes that ran serially in Cosmopolitan and gives Powell a brand new characterization. Kay Francis plays the part of Norma Page, Carole Lombard is Rachel Fendley and Oliver Tell is Mrs. Fendley. Carole Lombard, it will be recalled, is the girl Powell, in real life, plans to marry. Gilbert Emery, Martin Burton, John Holland and others are in the cast.

Cupid Beats Star

Cupid has won a victory over Glenna Collett (upper), where few individuals ever could accomplish it. Glenna, leading woman golfer of the U. S. and holder for the last five years of the national championship, has become engaged to Edwin H. Vane, Jr. (lower), of Ambler, Pa., also a golfer, construction engineer and nephew of William S. Vane, Republican leader of Pennsylvania. The wedding bells will ring out soon, according to announcement from the bride-to-be's mother, of Greenwich, Conn.

CROSS-EYED CONFESSIONS

By JOHN P.
MEDBURY

For years I have been a successful burglar in a small town and my "jiminy" gives me entree to some of the best homes in the city. Things are a little tough right now though and it looks like I'll have to go out and earn an honest living until something better turns up.

I was speaking to a highwayman friend of mine this morning and he says business is so slow that the thugs are using second hand blackjacks to cut down their overhead.

The high cost of burglar's tools is terrible. Gas pipes have been raised seventy-five cents an inch and sand bags have gone up $1.25 a pound.

Hard times are hitting every branch of the business. I understand most of the beggars now have to give credit and that thugs are holding up pedestrians on the deferred payment plan.

A Great Plan! I'm not trying to tell the authorities how to rid the city of crooks, but Scotland has had practically no crime since they began charging for seats in the patrol wagon.

I wouldn't mind all this depression if I weren't having matrimonial troubles. I am not signing this article, for reasons which are obvious; however, I'd like to say that I am one of the best known second story men in America. My name is a household word in every jail in the country.

In spite of this, I get no consideration at all around the house. Take last night, for instance: I worked until 2 a. m. cracking a safe at the bank and then when I got home my wife made me go out in the kitchen and open a can of sardines.

I can't understand Mabel. She's one of the best counterfeiter in the United States, but she's letting religion interfere with her business; she won't make any spurious bills on Sunday.

Still Worse! Not only that, but she insists upon putting her first husband's picture on currency because she thinks he's better looking than George Washington or Benjamin Franklin.

While I never like to be deceitful, I have had my wife followed for the last couple of months and was surprised to learn that she is very much in love with a good-for-nothing porch climber.

I'll admit that he's fairly successful in his business, but it's nothing but luck; he got in on the ground floor.

This man is trying to get her to go to Chicago with him and open an artillery store on the south side. She has very fancy ideas and wants to call it "Ye Olde-Fashioned Machine Gun Shoppe."

Wouldn't This Make Y' Sick? This might draw a certain class of people, but the average crook isn't going to buy a bomb just because it's all dolled up in baby ribbon.

In the first place, he hasn't had any experience with bombs and other infernal machines; he'd probably be blown to pieces the first day and become a man about town.

Human nature is a funny thing. Here I am out all night minding my own business robbing homes, and this guy breaks into my house while I'm gone and steals my wife. I could also let sentiment interfere with my work if I wanted to, because my burglar trips take me into many a lovely boudoir, but I have too much self-respect to trifle. I just go through the bureau drawers and jewel cases and then leave, like any honorable married man should.

Ah, Go Ahead! Let this porch climber take my wife if he wants her. Let him support her by sneaking into basements and kitchen windows. Some day she'll be glad to return to me—glad to come back to a man she knows she can trust.

Things are a little tough right now, but I have the courage of several convictions and feel that if I just keep on picking and jimmying I'm bound to succeed.

Other guys can prow around cellars and first floors if they want to, but my ambition in life is to be a respectable conscientious second-story man—That's my story, and I'm going to stick to it.

Farm Notes

FARMERS LENGTHEN LIFE OF MACHINERY

That Ohio farmers are making their equipment last longer now than they have in the past is indicated by figures collected by F. L. Morrison of the Rural Economics Department of the Ohio Experiment Station.

In 1920 a group of about forty farmers in Greene and Medina Counties began keeping cost accounts. At that time a complete inventory of all farm machinery was taken, the original date of purchase being noted for each piece. Contact has been maintained with these farmers during the past eleven years. The 1931 inventories of these farms, which might be considered as typical of a large part of northern and western Ohio, contain much older equipment than those of 1920. The average age of all machinery on these farms at present is twelve years, or only two years less than the average age at which they have discarded the same kind of machinery since 1920. But that the present stock of machinery still has considerable service left in it is indicated by the fact that the owners estimate its probable future life at an average of eight years, making twenty years total life. In 1920 these farmers placed the average total useful life of their machinery at fifteen years.

As long as prices of farm products remain at a disadvantage as compared to the cost of things that farmers buy, better care will be taken of the existing equipment, thereby prolonging its life. But when farm purchasing power improves, the effective demand for farm machinery will increase. During the five years, 1926-1930, these farmers purchased only 46 per cent as many pieces of field machinery as were bought in the five years, 1916-1920.

SCOUT SCRAP BOOKS AVAILABLE NOW FOR ALL COUNTY SCOUTS

Distribution of a Boy Scout Scrap Book to all Greene County registered Scouts is now being made by Harold Owens, of the Criterion Clothing Co., official Scout outfitter, here.

Scoutmasters are being requested to call in person for their quota of the books because none will be distributed directly to the boys.

The book is in bound pamphlet form, eight by eleven inches. Pages are given over to camp fire memories, songs, pictures of the greatest patrol in the world, photographs and autographs of leaders and fellow Scouts, along the trail, hiking trips, snapshots of the gang, those good old days in camp, the "light" containing newspaper clippings on Scouting service to others in which Scouts participated, and interesting slants on Scout tests. The book was designed by C. F. Mellage, deputy Scout commissioner for Tecumseh Council. Several thousand copies have already been distributed to other Scout councils by Mellage through the official outfitters, and 200 will be available for Greene County Scouts.

Registered Scouts will have opportunity to enter a scrap-book contest beginning June 1 and ending October 1. Rules of the contest are printed on the inside cover of each book. No judges have been chosen, according to Owens, but the two prizes are already selected. They are: first, an official Boy Scout watch, and second, official Scout 100-mile pedometer.

According to Mellage, the scrap book contest idea is winning popular favor with the Scouts throughout the central, southern and eastern states.
